Well, then again maybe, maybe not. (see below)

Nope that's the one, at least spelled that way in the IGI.
Franconia Township I believe??

I've never been exactly sure where the "Great Swamp" was other than some where between Allentown/Bethlehem and Philadelphia.

It does not show that, it shows a birth date however of 7 Sep 1735. This is the same as listed in Humphrey's briths for Montgomery. So if the Moravian record is correct, then this isn't the right Salome. My problem is that I've looked high and low in for a record and I haven't found it.
I figured with the Humphrey's birth books I should be able to, but there still is no record to be found.
There is a second Salome in b. Montgomery Co., but way later in 1798.

Dale,

If the subject looks familiar, it should. I am quoting from some information when you and I first exchanged email addresses. I decided to do a little work on this line since I've gotten pretty far back in all of the other lines on my mom's side.

>Burkart,

You quoted from Burkart here, the entry of Johannes Abraham Muller. I went to look for further Fuhrmann and Fickeisen references in the IGI to go back further, but I had a lot of trouble finding the J. Abraham's info. And the Abraham's I found did not seem to have a Salome.

I rechecked the Faulkner's records using Humphrey's early births books and found Salome's parents were Johannes and Elizabeth Muller. I had no problem with Johannes knowing the German naming conventions, but his wife's name was supposed to be Maria Magdalena. I looked over the record in S&H that Burkart refers to and it's correct.

So I looked for a bit in some ship lists books and wasn't getting anywhere and was going to go to Humphrey's births for Northampton when I looked down and saw Humphrey's Early Northampton Families. I knew that he made a couple of Muller families in it, but had previously assumed they were not the right ones based on the info you gave me.

This Muller family goes back to Johannes and Elizabeth (Frey) Muller, and yep, they're the ones listed in Faulkner. The agreement between Henry Frey and his children was written and witnessed by Johannes Muller.

After I got the name of Elizabeth Frey, the Mullers were easy to track down in the IGI, and Salome is listed there with her mother's maiden name listed as Frey.

It's interesting that Humphrey lists Elizabeth Frey's husband as "Dr." Johannes Muller.
