* Simon Dreisbach, Sr., and Jr., were prominent elders of the Indian Creek Reformed Church in Allen township, Northampton County. See the letter of Simon Dreisbach, Jr., written in January, 1773, published by the Rev. Dr. John B. Stoudt, in the Reformed Church Review, vol. XVIII (1914), pp. 206-218.

Cabinetmakers

Establishing a home in the early days of Brooke County was not easy. It required strong backs and willing hands. Sometimes carpenters doubled as cabinetmakers. Most cabins were furnished with a large plank table, a few crude chairs or stools, and a rope bed. A few pewter dishes, and iron pots, wooden bowls, trenchers, and noggins, looms for weaving, spinning wheels and reels completed the most common items of household goods. A few women might have managed to bring one or two good pieces of china and silver with them from the East, but these would be used only on very special occasions.

Obviously, carpenters and cabinetmakers were indispensable in such a society. These early artisans combined thier talents: designed buildings/houses, constructed them, designed and fashioned the furnishings. Later carpenters and cabinetmakers branched out into merchandising. They operated general stores and furniture stores (often in connection with an undertaking business). Others became known for thier specialties: clocks, blacksmith bellows, making of wooden machine parts, chairs, violins, restoring antiques, and handcrafting small items of wood.

Records show that Elijah Cole bought property between Eight and Ninth streets on Main in Charleston, Virginia, on July 4, 1794, where he estsablished a carpenter shop. John Brown, father-in-law of Alexander Cambell, was one of the early Brooke County cabinetmakers. Isaac T. Duval and his nephew, William Duval, glassmakers, were fine cabinetmakers and carpenters. The latter operated a warehouse and advertised that he had "a neat hearse and fine coffins for sale." About 1840, Alfred W. Plattenburg took over the Duval buisness; besides the usual household furniture, he made venetian blinds to order.

In 1794 Patrick Gass apprenticed himself for two years and three months at Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, to learn the carpenter's trade. A cabin he built on the northwest corner of Tenth and Main streets in Charlestone, Virginia, (later covered with clapboard and with rooms added) stands today. The "remodeled cabin" known as The Traveler's Rest and The Yellow Hammer Nest may refer to inns operated by subsequent owners.

In 1826 Samuel Marks opened a furniture factory located between Seventh and Eight on Charles Street. In the 1840s the firm added another family member when captain Thomas Park joined his uncle, Samuel Marks. In 1865 T.H. Marks joined his father and uncle; they moved the business to the corner of Eigth and Main streets. This remained a Marks family buisness for more than a century.

Another family firm, William Lloyd and son John, operated a chairmaking factory and an undertaking establishment (1820s until the late 1870s). Son John was joined by Hugh Barth, a native of Wuttemberg, Germany, who came to Brooke County via Pittsburgh. A bookcase in the Brooke County Historical Museum was one made by Lloyd and Bath of Wellsburg probably in the 1860s. In 1866 Barth opened a general store. His descendants carry on a family buisness today in downtown Wellsburg.

John Moran, a native of Washington County, Pennsylvania, apprenticed himself in 1796 at the age of fourteen to cabinetmaker McConnel to learn his trade. Later Mr. Moran built the General I.H. Duval house on Pleasant Avenue (now the Charles Bell Home). An impressive walnut secretary-desk, a Moran original, is one of the furnishings of the Bell home.

Between 1830 and 1870 these three names appear in the record: Alfred Craft and his father who started thier buiness in Bethany and later moved to Wellsburg. Their shop located on the south side of Twelfth Street specialized in tables, chairs, and cabinets; the Crafts also built homes in the area. Thomas McCarty, who specialized in clockmaking, worked in Wellsburg from the 1820s through the 1870s.

B. Crawford made a plaque of seventy-six varieties of native West Virginia wood for the Philadelphia Exposition of 1876. This plaque, which recived "Honorable Mention," was presented to the Brooke County Historical Museum by his niece, Mrs. Martha Hall Bender of Norfolk, Virginia. Later Mr. Crawford moved his shop to his home on Tenth Street; this house stands today.

The Civil War

No attempt will be made to give a history of the war or the formation of the state of West Virginia. This has been a thoroughly covered in many books and articles, but we will try to give the history of the men and companies serving from Brooke County.

There were no military organizations at Wellsburg until after the secession when the "Home Guard" was organized under Major W. H. Harvey. By the end of May 1861, two companies were formed for a three-month tour of duty. The roster of which follows:

Company F, First Virginia Infantry, mustered into service on May 14, 1861, by Major Oakes at Wheeling Island:

man, W Thomas C. Parke, captain; Oscar F. Melvin, first lieutenant; E. W. Melvin, second lieutenant; J.A. Lewis, sergeant; J. W. Plattenburg, sergeant; G. M. White, sergeant; W. Reeves, sergent; J. Jackson, corporal; C. B. Hall, corporal; and privates, Jos. Alego, H. H. Aucky, M. V. Anderson, Shep Barnes, Wm. Brownlee, G. Blankensop, John A. Briggs, D. F. Benhaw, W. S. Bigger, W. A. Billingsly, L. Ball, J. Barrett, J. Brenamen, J. M. Clemens, F. Collers, J. Coen, William Deighton, J. Dean, C. Davis, L. Davis, Geo. Frazier, G. F. Frank, J. Foster, R. Foster, T. C. Good, Wm. Porter, Samuel Patterson, George Prather, John Rien, James Rungon, Wm. Russell, Thoma A. Spence, Josh Storer, Jas. Smith, J. E. Smith, G. Taylor, John Updegraff, Wm. Winters, Benton Wright, and Isaac Young.

By the middle of May both companies were in camp on Wheeling Islan. These men had enlisted for three months and were discharged after their enlistment was up.

In September 1861, there was a call for a regiment and this was the beginning of the first Viginia Infantry.

I. H. Duval was appointed major of the First Virginia Volunteer Infantry on May 29, 1861, and was connected with this regiment until his promotion to colonel in the Ninth West Virginia Infantry. He continued receiving promotons from time to time up to major general by brevet.

Re: George Plattenburg

Dear Mr. Plattenburg:

The only information that I could find was a Death Certificate for Mary Plattenburg who died on July 29, 1860, at the age of 90. The only other information on the certificate was that she died of old age, was born in Maryland and was the wife of George.

As you already know, the Will of George Plattenburg is on record here. Our marriages go back to 1797, but I did not see any record of their marriage. Our birth and death records only go back to 1853.

Very truly yours,

Sylvia J. Benzo
